

West, Arabs Can Live as Friends, Says Glubb

(Written for NEA Service)

LONDON — (NEA) — Inevitably, the events in Iraq have been most painful to me personally than perhaps anyone in Britain. It is now nearly 40 years since I began service in that nation under King Faisal I, grandfather of the unfortunate young king.

For 26 years, I served in Jordan under the grandfather and father of King Hussein. Not only did I know both the young monarchs further Israeli expansion is an ever present anxiety, particularly in Jordan, Syria and Lebanon.

The impression that the Western powers are more likely to support than to restrain Israel is a powerful incentive to the Arabs to seek help in Moscow.

There can be no doubt that Britain and the U. S. would be strongly opposed to further Israeli to convince a majority of the Arabs of this fact.

There is a certain urgency about this matter, as it is not impossible that Israel might seize the opportunity to advance her frontier to the Jordan River.

Should the success of the Baghdad military coup be permanent, it is essential for Britain and the U. S. to avoid the errors committed in their relations with Nasser's Egypt.

Initially, the prejudices that I have referred to will probably cause an Iraqi revolutionary government to assume an anti-Western complexion. But in the long run, it is as important for Iraq to sell her oil to the West, as it is for the West to be able to buy it.

After all, the Arabs are free to choose whatever form of government suits them best. Their economic interests, however, tie them to the West.

Whatever form of government is established in Iraq, economies inevitably will assert their influence—provided the Iraqis are convinced that the West does not wish to dominate them, and will not support Israel against them.

But regardless of the ultimate political results of the present upheaval, it is impossible not to feel deep sympathy for the fate of young Faisal of Iraq the king who knew no father. Faisal's father was killed in an accident when the boy was only four years old.

And the Iraq revolt cannot fail to produce a reaction in Jordan here King Hussein is left to defend his throne, deprived of the support of his cousin.

Both young men found themselves Kings before they came of age. Both were equally intelligent and patriotic. They have been victims of events and world movements beyond their control.

Strategic Army Corps May Be Sent Overseas

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growing Middle East crisis strengthened the possibility today the Army may be called on to send overseas some of its special forces.

The Army has organized four divisions — two airborne and two infantry — into what it calls the Strategic Army Corps, or STRAC. The Army says this force is trained, armed and equipped to move out on instant notice to deal with any limited war.

The first call on the strategic reserve may be to fill vacancies in Western European defenses caused by the deployment of U. S. Army units to the Middle East.

One airborne battle group of the 24th Infantry Division in West Germany already has been shifted to Turkey, a quick jump from Lebanon where a U. S. Marine force already has landed.

The expectation is that the other airborne battle group of the 24th would move to Turkey to take up the position held by the first group or to join it in Lebanon if needed there.

This would mean that the combat strength of the 24th in Germany would be cut by almost a third — and that the logical source for replacement would be from one of the four divisions in the U. S.-based STRAC organization.

The necessity for filling roles in the European defenses is only part of the possibility.

The sharp warning sounded Friday by President Nasser of the United Arab Republic can mean that substantial forces might be needed in the Middle East, on a far bigger scale than battalions or battle groups — and needed quickly.

While the Army is ready to move, it is not ready to move. It is not ready to move. It is not ready to move. It is not ready to move.

The Army long has complained that the Air Force has an insufficient number of planes to move large size Army forces overseas by air.

Bulletin

HOPE, Germany (AP) — West German police announced today the release of nine U. S. Army men held by Communist East Germany since June 7.

They were handed over to Western authorities at the East German border in Bavaria and were taken to headquarters of their unit—the 3rd Armored Division in Frankfurt.

Steel Truck Overturns and Blocks Road

HOPE, Ark. (AP) — A massive trailer-truck and two other vehicles piled up on a busy highway near here last night, injuring four persons and causing a two-hour traffic blockade.

Officers said the big truck, loaded with prefabricated steel parts for a log debarking machine, was headed for a lumber mill at Caddo Gap.

Sherrill's officers gave this account: The truck driver, Mack Higgins, 33, of Rison, passed a station wagon and saw a car speeding to beat him in the opposite lane. He swung the wheel and ran the truck onto the right shoulder of the road.

As the truck left the highway, the rear of the trailer hit the station wagon, following and spun it around. The approaching car struck the station wagon.

Meanwhile the big truck careened back onto the road—U. S. Highway 270—and overturned, spilling its cargo. The road was blocked by the debris.

Although the truck had turned turtle, Higgins suffered only minor injuries and was not hospitalized.

Driver of the station wagon was Mrs. Fred Muhl of Hot Springs and the car was driven by Mrs. Jack B. Brimley of Hot Springs. Mrs. Brimley's husband and Mrs. Fred Schenberger of Hot Springs were passengers in the car.

Mrs. Muhl escaped injury and the three in the car suffered minor injuries but did not require hospitalization. The station wagon was heavily damaged but the car had lighter damage.

The truck, owned by Elrod Lumber Co. of Rison, was described as a total loss.

About 30 gallons of gasoline spilled from the truck and Hot Springs firemen washed it off the blocked highway.

Officers had to detain heavy traffic for two hours while the wreckers from Hot Springs tugged at the debris.

The accident occurred at 5 p. m. and occurred about a mile east of Hot Springs.

Shetland Mare, Colt Bring $1,300 at Auction in Hope

The Shetland pony mare and colt shown in the picture sold for $1,300 Friday afternoon at the opening session of the Shetland Pony Auction which continues through Saturday at the Third District Livestock Show grounds.

The buyer was S. R. Watts, right, of the Pony Sales firm, Baton Rouge, La.

The auction opens at 10 a. m., with the ponies going on sale at 1 p. m.

Hope's Rose Hill Cemetery Moved to Present Location More Than 70 Years Ago

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Much has been said and written about the historical pioneer cemeteries in our neighboring town of Washington. That leads one to wonder about the city-owned cemetery in Hope, Rose Hill.

It has been at its location on North Hazel Street about 70 years, but before that the city-owned cemetery was in the block immediately west of Oglesby School.

In that location and for several years in its present one, the cemetery was called Cave Hill because of the tendency of land in Hope to sink. That wasn't a very comforting name, so it was eventually changed to Rose Hill.

After the graves were moved from Main Street, so the story goes, boys at the school across the street often played ball on the newly vacated lots, and sometimes they used old tombstones for "bases." If that's true, it is not likely that there were many "stolen" bases.

Under the leadership and guidance of such people as the late Capt. Charles Bidwell and Mrs. K. G. McRae a cemetery association was formed when it became apparent such an organization was needed. Mrs. James Hicks (deceased) was its first president.

To raise money for his group of citizens to maintain the functions of new project, various methods were used. Everything from baby shows to outdoor suppers were held on the square block now housing the City Hall.

And who could forget the annual chrysanthemum shows. Beautiful varieties of every description were shown, and Mrs. Charlie White (deceased) was the undisputed champion. These shows were usually held in a vacant store building in downtown Hope.

As for the turkey dinners which the association had for many years, they proved to be a financial success. It was due in a large measure to the efforts of the late Mrs. M. E. Barlow who always carved the turkeys and who, everyone agreed, could make them "go further" than any other person in town.

When we see the row of beautiful magnolia trees across the west end of Rose Hill, the work of the late Mrs. E. L. Prall comes to mind. She taught art in Hope and moved here from the North when her husband was put in charge of the local heading mill.

A admirer of the magnolia trees in our part of the country, Mrs. Prall decided a row of them would look pretty at the entrance to the cemetery, so she sold plates which she hand-painted in order to buy little magnolia trees.

Since Rose Hill is not a very old cemetery, the people who are buried there don't go back very far in the annals of history, comparatively speaking. But it is the last resting place of a number of Civil War soldiers and founding fathers of our town.

Monuments there bear such names as Col. W. P. Fulton, who had an early newspaper in Hope; Walter Shiver, who built the first house in Hope; Col. Gus Noble, the civil engineer who was the first road master of a railroad through Hope; Judge Arthur Gibson; "Pappy" Kyle, the law enforcement official who ruled from his front porch; and whose real name no one seems to remember.

Some permitted the list could go on and on and would include doctors, lawyers, merchants, bankers, and other civic-minded people.

Today Hope's Cemetery Association again recognizes the need for care of its lots and in the last few weeks much needed improvement has been made in their appearance.

Paratroopers Land in Beirut; Support Marines

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Nasser and his Communist backers waged a campaign of warnings today against growing U. S. and British military strength in the inflammable Middle East.

As the crisis moved toward a verbal showdown in the U. N. General Assembly, 1,700 U. S. paratroopers began landing in Beirut to support the 6,000 Marines quietly patrolling Beirut's port and beaches. The paratroopers from Germany came from a staging area in southeast Turkey.

bloodshed might occur. He vowed that "we will defend those who defend us and meet aggression with aggression."

The President of the United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria made the pledge in Damascus after a secret meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow.

If the United States and Britain antagonize the Arabs, Nasser warned, "we shall fight to the last drop of our blood." But by saying in the future (since that the U. A. R. will meet aggression, he indicated he was not spilling for a fight at this time. The Communist world previously accused the United States and Britain of committing aggression by sending in troops.

Moscow and Peking avoided any definite promises of armed aid to Nasser. The Soviet foreign ministry issued a declaration which warned, however, that Russia cannot remain on the sidelines.

The Soviet Union will have to take "necessary measures dictated by the interests of the security of the Soviet Union and preservation of general peace," the declaration said.

The measures were not spelled out, although there was an ominous hint that Moslems in Soviet Central Asia might intervene in the adjacent Middle East. There was no mention of the Russian crisis threats of sending Soviet "volunteers" into the Middle East, however.

Underlining the Russian charges of U. S.-British aggression, a mob of 100,000 shattered nearly 300 windows in this embassy in Moscow and splashed ink on the lower part of the building. About 100 persons demonstrated peacefully at the British Embassy.

Red China joined in with a note warning that "peace-loving nations and people will not stand by with folded arms" if Britain remains in Jordan.

McClellan noted that Federal District Judge Harry J. Lemley had ordered integration of Central High School in Little Rock suspended for 2 1/2 years but that the order has been appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis.

He asked White whether, if the suspension order should be overruled and there still was "opposition and obstruction" this fall to the admission of Negro students at Central High, he would advise the President to call out troops again to enforce integration.

White replied that the use of armed forces would be considered only if the obstruction reached such an extreme that civil forces could not cope with it.

White said that he would urge that every possible preparation be made.

Norwegian Picks Up Yanks at Sea

SANTA MARIA AIRFIELD, Azores (AP) — A Norwegian freighter reported today she has picked up two American airmen whose B-26 jet bomber crashed in the Atlantic off the Azores. The three crew members were sighted on a raft and a Portuguese patrol ship directed to the scene.

The freighter Vespasian said she is heading for the Azores. The bomber disappeared Thursday on a flight from Shaw Air Force Base, S. C., to a European base, via the Azores.

When people want to look brave, they take a deep breath and flex their muscles. This is nonsense. They should take a deep breath and flex their fat. For fat is braver than muscle.

In some situations your cowardly muscles seem to turn to water. But as any dieter knows — fat won't run off from anything — at least of its own volition. Fat is a born fighter.

Anyone who has ever tried to get rid of fat learns this quickly. My own experience is typical. Six months ago my doctor told me: "Your weight is up to 210 pounds. Some 30 pounds of it is fat. The other 180 pounds is bone and muscle. Get rid of the fat!"

The solution seemed simple. Just starve the fat by exercising and wear it away by dieting. After all the odds seemed hopelessly in favor of the bone and muscle. They outweighed the fat 6 to 1.

But what happened? The fat wouldn't give up. In the last half year I must have walked a distance from here to Timbuktu, done enough knee bends to need new joints, eaten hardly enough to keep a hummingbird humming, and the result? I have lost 15 pounds, at least half of which must be muscle. The fat has outlasted my muscles. The fat has outlasted my muscles. The fat has outlasted my muscles.

What makes you nervous and jumpy? What keeps you tense? Your nerves and muscles. But good old fat never gets excited. It is calm and soothing. It keeps telling you, "Take it easy. What's the hurry?" Fat is the voice of common sense.

Fat is faithful. Fat is loyal. It will stick to you through thick and thin. It will follow you through thick and thin. It will follow you through thick and thin. It will follow you through thick and thin.

Some published reports have put the amount taken in the alleged robbery as high as $112,000.

Stop on Highway to Kill Rattler

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — A lot of motorists would keep going if they saw a 5-foot rattlesnake wriggling across the highway ahead.

But three men in a pickup traveling on state Highway 88 about three miles north of here yesterday not only stopped to get a better look—one of them picked up a brickbat and killed the snake.

They took their trophy, a 62-inch specimen with 16 rattles and a bullet, to Hot Springs where they exhibited it to friends.

The three were Billy Fisher, 23, and B. G. McLaughlin, 24, both of North Little Rock, and Robert Waters, 24, of Cabot.

Credit for the "bug" was shared. Fisher, McLaughlin and Waters are employees of a wholesale grocery firm here.

Won't Rule Out Force on Integration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Atty. Gen. W. Wilson White refused today to rule out the possibility that federal troops might be used again to enforce court orders for school integration at Little Rock, Ark.

But, pressed hard on this point by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) at a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing, White testified that "I can say categorically" that it is not the program of the Justice Department to enforce school integration at the point of a bayonet.

Can you say it will not happen? demanded McClellan.

"In my opinion, it will not," White replied. He refused, however, to say troops would not be used again in circumstances like that which occurred at Central High School in Little Rock last September.

White, serving under a recess appointment made by President Eisenhower last Dec. 8, appeared before the committee for a hearing on his nomination to head the Justice Department's new Civil Rights Division.

The hearing on White's nomination, stalled the Judiciary Committee for more than six months, was the first held since last February.

At the conclusion of the hearing, McClellan said he had still more questions to ask and understood that other senators did also. Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss) directed White to return Monday afternoon for further testimony.

McClellan noted that Federal District Judge Harry J. Lemley had ordered integration of Central High School in Little Rock suspended for 2 1/2 years but that the order has been appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis.

He asked White whether, if the suspension order should be overruled and there still was "opposition and obstruction" this fall to the admission of Negro students at Central High, he would advise the President to call out troops again to enforce integration.

White replied that the use of armed forces would be considered only if the obstruction reached such an extreme that civil forces could not cope with it.

Goldfine Leaves Capital; Same Old Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine left Washington Friday in the same manner in which he arrived — on a note of controversy.

And, as with his coming, it involved Presidential Aide Sherman Adams.

As the millionaire industrialist and his wife were taking off by plane for Boston, a reporter asked Mrs. Goldfine whether they had visited their old friends, the Adamses for dinner.

But at the White House, Press Secretary James Hagerty said there was some misunderstanding.

"Mr. Goldfine was not at Gov. Adams' house last (Thursday) night," said Hagerty.

Hagerty said Adams had stopped by Goldfine's hotel to tell him goodbye Friday morning. And he said Mrs. Goldfine had seen Mrs. Adams on several occasions during the Goldfine's stay in Washington for the congressional hearings.

Goldfine, on reaching Boston, was unavailable for comment by reporters seeking to clarify the conflicting statements.

Goldfine returned home after completing eight stormy days of testimony before a House commerce subcommittee seeking to determine whether Adams had pulled federal strings in behalf of the New England textile manufacturer.

Adams admitted he accepted gifts and favors from Goldfine but denied doing anything to influence federal agencies looking into Goldfine's business affairs. Goldfine also emphatically denied favored treatment.

Meanwhile, the House armed services investigations subcommittee announced it will begin hearings Monday on a second case involving alleged intervention by Adams in a government case against a business firm.

Chairman F. Edward Hebert (D-La.) said witnesses have been subpoenaed to give closed-door testimony about a contract penalty settlement with the defunct Rayline Worsted Co. of Manchester, N.H.

The firm was given a contract Dec. 17, 1940, to furnish 250,000 yards of serge to the Philadelphia Army quartermaster. Because of late deliveries the government assessed a $40,795 penalty against the firm.

After extensive negotiations, the penalty was reduced to $8,487 last year.

Leo Wolff, former president of the firm, has called it "damned ridiculous" to suggest that Adams or any other political figure influenced the penalty figure.

Hitched Ride Is Fatal for Crippled Boy

BORDENTOWN, N. J. (AP) — Everybody knew little Eddie O'Neil Rodgers, the crippled kid who thumped about on crutches swinging his bruised legs before him.

He'd been shining shoes since he was able, a little hunchbacked 13-year-old hopping here and there in search of customers.

Hurrying, hurrying on his lurching way, he would raise his thumb for rides.

"I guess Eddie used to cover 20 square miles," said State Trooper Joseph Rogalski. "We knew he loved to hitchhike, but we sort of—you might say—didn't molest him."

Eddie hitched a ride Thursday night with Alvin John W. Souder Jr. of Philadelphia. Eddie was a favorite of servicemen at nearby Ft. Dix and McGuire Air Force Base.

At Hadding, Souder's car spun out of control and off the side of the road. A utility pole snapped off the top. The two were pitched out.

Souder was in serious condition at Ft. Dix Hospital.

Eddie lay crumpled beside the smashed auto. He was dead of head injuries.

Beside him lay his splintered crutches.

LIKE LAWRENCE . . .

For more than 35 years, Lt. Gen. Sir John B. Glubb served Britain in the Middle East, governing from behind the scenes in the tradition of T. E. Lawrence. Like Lawrence, he lived with the desert tribesmen, learned their language, and earned their respect. To the members of Jordan's Arab Legion, which he built into the Arab world's finest fighting force, he was "Glubb Pasha." But in March 1956, young King Hussein was pressured by pro-Nasser elements in the Legion to dismiss Glubb without ceremony. Since then, Glubb has been seeking to arouse British and her allies to seek a new approach in their relations with the Arab world.

when they were children, but also their fathers before them.

In Iraq, as in every Arab country since the second World War, young army officers have been the spearheads of revolution.

But it is worthy of note that all revolutionary movements in the Arab countries have been inspired by a spirit of nationalism rather than affection for communism.

Of course, it is likely that the present coup will lead to the withdrawal of Iraq from the Baghdad Pact, and as such will be welcome to Soviet Russia.

Unfortunately, Britain's inability to explain her policy has enabled her enemies to build up in the minds of the public in many Arab countries a picture of her as an enemy of Arab nationalism.

Such an impression tends to impress on the younger Arab politicians the idea that the West will oppose progress and development in the Arab countries.

Britain also has paid insufficient attention to younger men, and has allowed herself to become too much identified with older statesmen. An unprejudiced examination of Britain's position, however, by no means confirms the necessity for such an attitude.

As a trading nation, her interests are to insure unimpeded passage of her ships through the Suez Canal, and the freedom of her traders to do business. There does not appear any adequate reason why such interests should bring her into opposition to Arab nationalism.

Britain's legitimate interests would be exposed to serious injury were the Arabs to become satellites of Soviet Russia. But Arab nationalists have no more desire to be dominated by Russia than by the West.

To be independent, progressive and modern is the Arab's ambition, and there is no fundamental reason why the West should be opposed to such a development. On the contrary, the Arabs are less likely to fall under communist domination if they believe both the U. S. and Britain are sympathetic to their hopes.

A further cause of friction between the Arabs and the West is the belief that Britain, France and the U. S. are committed to supporting Israel. The fear of

U. S. - British Move Brings Reaction

By EDWIN A. SHANKE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Repercussions to American and British intervention in the middle East spread grimly around the world today.

It was disclosed that the Soviet Union Premier Khrushchev had been in conference with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic. London diplomats speculated that they talked of a possible move of Soviet troops into Syria as a countermeasure to U. S. British landings nearby.

Syria is Egypt's partner in the U. A. R.

Cairo reported that Nasser talked eight hours with Khrushchev Thursday in Moscow. The secret meeting followed Nasser's eight-day meeting with President Tito of Yugoslavia, who, like Nasser and Khrushchev, has decried the U. S.-British action. Nasser is due home Saturday after talks in Syria.

The British and American buildup continued, with additional Marines pouring into Lebanon today. More British forces were alerted to go into Jordan. The prospect was that the two allies would have more than 10,000 troops in the Mideast by the week end, with many more thousands of men off shore in the U. S. 8th Fleet and British war vessels.

The Soviet Union seemed to be building toward some sort of dramatic action. A crowd of 100,000 demonstrated at the U. S. Embassy in Moscow, broke windows and pulled the building with ink. It was the second straight day of things that is well-organized in Moscow—and often is part of a campaign to make Soviet minds acknowledge the need of new strategies.

Soviet guns were roaring in large-scale maneuvers just across the border from Iran. A reporter at the scene said many types of planes were participating.

The United Nations was moving to find some sort of solution in the Mideast crisis — with little prospect of a compromise. Some of the United States' usual supporters were lukewarm to American actions.

The Marines who came ashore in Lebanon today landed four miles north of Beirut.

A fund-raising campaign at nearby Stamps produced $800 for her.

State Rights Bill Close to Vote in House

WASHINGTON (AP)—A controversial state rights bill reached the voting stage in the House today, with the opposition apparently heavily outnumbered.

Backers of the bill, curbing measures predicted passage by a margin of 2-1 or better, while opponents pinned their fading hopes on an amendment to prevent the bill from being retroactive.

There was a growing likelihood, though, that the bill would never become law. It hasn't been considered by the Senate, which has a full docket for the remaining weeks of this session. Two days of House debate also have brought hints of a veto because of Justice and Labor Department opposition.

The unusually brief bill—its 74 words long—says in effect that when there are state and federal laws dealing with the same subject, the federal law doesn't supersede the state law unless there is a direct and irreconcilable conflict or unless Congress, when enacting the federal law, expressly gave it a priority.

Alabaman in Speech for Segregation

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A former president of the Alabama State Southern Baptist Convention declared here last night that segregation was the will of God and that many persons had been "brainwashed" into believing it was not.

Dr. Henry L. Lyon, pastor of the Highland Avenue Baptist Church at Montgomery, Ala., told a meeting of the Capital Citizens Council that he believed the Supreme Court's 1954 school integration decision would be reversed.

"I earnestly believe that there are enough thinking, God-fearing, Bible-loving, determined American citizens to bring to pass by legal and orderly means" the reversal of the decision, he declared.

"The demand will come from both North and South."

The minister said the Bible supported segregation but there was "not a single passage of the Scripture supporting integration."

He used the seventh chapter of St. Matthew, verses 15 and 16, as his text.

Lyon declared that "certain leaders" had "brainwashed millions of the people of the earth with shrewd and clever propaganda" into accepting integration.

"God made some men white," he said, "it is his will that they remain white. God made some men black. His will is for them to remain black."

"No white man or black man has reason to be ashamed of the color of his face; it is the work

Rackets Body Hears Woman Threatened

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rackets Investigating Committee summoned today a woman who says she was threatened in an effort to silence her testimony on Chicago rackets.

Declining to identify her in advance, committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said she will name the witness stand the person she contends threatened her if she talked.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) has charged the attempt to silence her is part of an underworld conspiracy to obstruct justice and thwart the committee's investigation of a purported Chicago shakedown racket.

Among other things, the committee contends gangsters have joined with labor union officials to extort money from Chicago restaurants.

Kennedy said much of today's testimony would deal with Local 450 of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union, which operates in western and northern Chicago suburbs. Witnesses have charged this local took orders from the late Claude Maddox, described as a once ranking figure in the hierarchy of Chicago rackets.

Kennedy said two officials of the local, Danny Leonard and Lou Kouva, would be called for questioning, along with James Hickey, an international vice president of the union and a member of the union's huge Chicago Local 593.

"Two brothers, John and Danny Lardino, resigned at noon yesterday as officials of that local. Appearing before the committee later in the day, both invoked the fifth amendment when asked if they were involved with gangsters in shaking down restaurant owners."

They pleaded that answers to questions about extortion might tend to incriminate them. John Lardino even refused to say whether he is a U.S. citizen.

Angered, McClellan said he will ask that they be cited for contempt of Congress. He said a prosecution is needed "to clarify the jungle that has developed in the use of the fifth amendment."

Without explanation, the committee served them new subpoenas ordering them to return for further questioning Sept. 11.

Until his abrupt resignation, John Lardino held a $30,000-a-year job as administrative director of the big local and boss of its business agents. Brother Danny was one of the business agents.

John Lardino also balked at talking about the sources of his income.

Kennedy told the committee that staff investigators had seen in Lardino's safely deposit box $25,000 in currency and $25,000 in government bonds.

Investigator Lavern J. Duffy testified John Lardino was present when the box was opened and had refused to let him record the numbers on any of the currency.

TODAY'S 2-MINUTE MYSTERY THE CASE OF DEATH ON THE VIADUCT Twelfth of a series by Donald J. Sobel

An officer stood by the broken body of a young woman.

Dr. Haledjian was driving toward the Metropolitan Golf Club and an early round of golf. He had reached the Tarnis viaduct when he spied an empty patrol car parked to one side.

He stopped his station wagon immediately and descended 200 feet to the bottom of the gorge. There an officer stood beside the broken body of a young woman.

The policeman, recognizing the criminologist, accepted his offer of help, but added, "Not much mystery to this. She must have jumped. hit those boulders first, and bounced off. I found her left shoe six feet away. the contents of her pocketbook strewn around her yards."

Two sticks of lipstick, a black address book, a small amount of money, a handkerchief, and a packet of hair pins were collected neatly on top of the empty bag.

Examination of the body disclosed the spine broken and the skull smashed fearfully.

"She was a pretty girl," Muttered the officer.

"You knew her?"

"Name's Alice Divine. I passed her regularly. She walked across the viaduct every morning on the way to the factory. She always had a smile. I can't understand why, but it's suicide plain enough."

Before you commit yourself in a report, would you hunt something for me?" Inquired Haledjian.

The officer listened, and then climbed back to the viaduct. In a few minutes he returned.

"I guess you were right. It looks like murder now," he said opening his palm to show the object for which Haledjian had asked him to search.

Gal's Heart Won't Break as Readily as He Thinks

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been dating a boy who, I must admit, appeals to me greatly. Previously, he had been going with a girl in a nearby town who is supposed to have fared away in the near future. I know the boy sees no more than he does her, and he has been hinting that he'd like to go steady with me. He says he doesn't want to hurt her before she leaves but that, as soon as she's gone, he has something to ask me. I'm sure it's about going steady. Do you think he's sincere about saving the other girl's feelings, or is he just stringing me along?

— Loving But Wary

Dear L. B. W.: Your heartthrob is undoubtedly sincere. His only mistake is masculine egotism, which leads him to believe the girl would be heartbroken if he developed a new love interest, whereas he is probably already washed-up as far as she's concerned. He is being quite honest with you, so maintain the friendship, as it is, until the opposition moves on.

— Dorothy Dix

Dear Dorothy Dix: Last summer my girl friend and I met two of the most wonderful boys. We liked them and they liked us. We went out with them, but not too often. In the past months they haven't phoned or come over. We are still fond of them, but feel we are losing them. We tried giving parties, but that didn't work. How can we get them back? — Willing to do anything.

Dear Girls: One of the important lessons to be learned in life is when to give up. There are times when it's necessary. Among the things to be given up are boy friends who show a complete lack of interest.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I work in an office with several girls. One of them is to be married soon. It is the custom of the girl's family to give gifts of money, and she has advised everyone in the office that the only acceptable gift is cash. I would prefer giving her something else. Do you think I should go along with the crowd, satisfying the bride but doing so against my own wishes? — Perplexed.

Dear Perplexed: The bride-to-be is entirely out of order in dictating the sort of gift she wants. However, with her ungracious attitude toward customary gifts, she wouldn't appreciate anything you gave her, so you might as well save your energy and join the crowd. Don't give in money, any more than you were prepared to spend on something else.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a young married woman. During our courtship my husband and I got into the habit of calling each other "dear," "darling," etc. Now when we're out socially we find it difficult to drop these terms of endearment. Is it bad manners to use pet names?

Harnessing of H-Power Near Solution

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new advance in the American quest to harness the H-bomb reaction for industrial power was reported today.

U. S. scientists have generated temperatures of an estimated 10 million degrees centigrade — almost twice the previous record high reported by the United States.

— testimony released by a House Appropriations subcommittee reported.

Dr. J. H. Williams, director of the Atomic Energy Commission's Division of Research, told of the development at recent hearings on AEC requests for supplementary appropriations for its various activities.

Williams said scientists at the University of California Radiation Laboratory and AEC facility achieved the high temperature in research aimed at duplicating the powerful hydrogen fusion reaction for peaceful use.

He said this is about 10 per cent of the temperature that would be necessary to sustain such a reaction for power purposes—and is thus "well along the road" to the temperature objective.

Deep-V Style for Women This Fall

BY GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Plenty of the new fall clothes for dress-up show plenty of a girl's topside.

Luis Estevez and Cell Chapman, a couple of designers who believe shape is for showing, cut necklines to new depths both fore and aft in their collections displayed this week for 200 visiting fashion reporters.

"Modest Well, just barely," quipped a spokesman for Miss Chapman, who cops some necks right down to where that high-rising empire waistline comes to.

The Cuban-born Estevez adds two new treatments to the roster of devastating necklines for which he is famous. One is the U-back which bares almost the whole spine in a deep V-shape. He also introduces the "elephant" neckline, which consists of a separate wide collar encircling the throat.

Another Estevez number is transparent brown chiffon over crepe plumes in a deep V to the waist both front and back. The outer layer of chiffon comes to a modest high in front.

Miss Chapman features three major silhouettes for cocktail and evening clothes. One is the masked sheath—actually a sheath dress with a wide panel running all the way from the low-cut neckline at the back to the hemline.

The second is the diamond horseshoe, which clings to the body to the knees, then widens into a flounce or in some cases ends at the hemline with a wide border of one of the long, hair be made to rely on the use of civil forces and avoid the use of troops. He added that everyone in the justice department earnestly hope that there will be no trouble again such as prompted Eisenhower last fall to send Army paratroopers to Little Rock and to federalize the Arkansas National Guard.

"I'm trying to find out what we're heading for," McClellan said, telling White that "it was on your findings and conclusions of law" that the President acted last September.

White at the time was head of the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel and, as such, directed the legal research and prepared the proclamations issued by Eisenhower in dispatching troops to Little Rock.

White, a Philadelphia lawyer, stoutly maintained that "I think we did right under the circumstances" in the Little Rock situation.

McClellan and Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-NC) argued that troops had been ordered into Little Rock without giving other methods for dealing with the situation a chance to work.

Ervin said that local police were allowed to function for "only a few hours before troops were sent in with bayonets." Additionally, he said contempt citations could have been brought against persons interfering with the court order.

He and McClellan also emphasized that every able-bodied man in the 40 counties of the Eastern District in Arkansas could have been sworn in as a deputy U. S. Marshal to enforce the school integration order.

McClellan protested what he called the by-passing of these normal procedures, but White testified that "those alternatives overlooked the suddenness with which the mob developed there."

He also observed that Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas had thrown national guardsmen around the school to keep the Negro students out.

McClellan at one point inquired whether J. Smith Henley, nominated to be U. S. judge for the Eastern District of Arkansas had anything to do with the sending of troops to Little Rock.

Henley is director of the Office of Administrative Procedures in the Justice Department.

White assured McClellan that Henley had "absolutely nothing to do" in any way with the dispatch of troops to Little Rock.

Around the World

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Four fighter planes were sent to this city in western Austria today after the government protested U.S. transports were violating Austrian neutrality by flying over the area en route to the Middle East.

Innsbruck is in the narrow finger of Austria pointing toward Switzerland. If U. S. transports do not cross the area after taking off from their bases in southern Germany, they have to detour around neutral Switzerland and fly over France some 300 miles to the west.

The session was punctuated by repeated partisan bickering and a renewed complaint by Goldfine the subcommittee past out to smear him.

Rep. Charles A. Wollerton (R-NJ) contended the subcommittee should prove its nonpartisanship by quizzing John R. Steelman, who held Adams' job under President Truman.

Dislike Cut of 18% for Nat'l Guard

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A proposal to whittle the number of Arkansas Army National Guard units by 18 per cent would hurt in several ways, the state adjutant general said yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Sherman T. Clinger listed these developments as inevitable if the Department of the Army suggestion goes through:

1. The army construction program in smaller Arkansas cities would stop because additional armies probably would not be necessary.

2. Arkansas would lose some 20 to 25 per cent of the federal income received by guardsmen.

3. Skilled professional men such as physicians who have devoted years to the Guard would have to retire or revert to inactive status.

Clinger met with adjutant generals of all other states a Washington this week and they unanimously opposed the proposed 18 per cent nationwide cutback in the Army Guard. The Army wants to reduce the Guard from 400,000 to 300,000 men on the ground that atomic age warfare techniques require less manpower.

The proposed reductions range from 25 to 31 per cent in the states Clinger said. He added that the adjutant generals wanted a uniform cut of 10 per cent in all states if a reduction had to be made.

Third is the dancing nymph silhouette with a fitted, draped front but with the back ballooning out like a parachute.

Estevez also called contrasting fabric a call attention to the bust. Several of his short fitted cocktail sheaths have the bust encircled by a wide band of white or bright colored satin with the ends twisted into an unfastening "propeller bow" at the front.

For daytime, Estevez likes the higher waistline often accented with a drawstring tied under the bosom. He also brings out the puffy wheel sheath, cut straight and narrow except for a wide flared dounce at the knee.

German Measles Dangerous for Pregnant Women; Need Exposure as Little Girls

By DELOS SMITH

UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—In the 17 years since medical science first realized it is dangerous for expectant mothers to catch German measles, it has discovered no better way of avoiding the danger than exposing females to the disease when they are children.

That is on the word of Drs. Saul Krugman and Robert Ward, professors at New York University, who are accepted as authorities on one of the oddest of the odd set-ups between human beings and the viruses which cause many of their ills.

The German measles virus is rather harmless as viruses go, except in pregnant women. Almost always it causes only a mild illness and once you've had it, you never—or just about never—have it again. But it has a poorly understood power to damage the unborn.

Damage To Tissues
Assembling the odds and ends of what science has discovered about this power to date, Krugman and Ward found the damage usually is to those of the unborn babe's tissues which are developing most rapidly at the time the mother has German measles.

If it's in the sixth week of pregnancy, the damage may be to the eyes; if in the ninth week, the ears; if between the fifth and tenth weeks, the heart. The first three months of pregnancy are those of danger. If the woman catches German measles after that, there usually is no damage to the babe.

There has been confusion as to how often German measles strikes at the unborn, and Krugman and Ward clarified the question. The first statistics indicated it happened in 90 per cent of the women who caught the disease during the dangerous months. But their analysis of later though contradictory statistics indicated the "attack rate" about 14 per cent.

Exposure Best Method
On the vital question of what to do, they recommended large injections of gamma globulin where there was the slightest suspicion that a pregnant woman who had never had German measles had been exposed to it. Gamma globulin is the fraction of the blood which carries the antibodies that bestow immunity to specific diseases.

But "the best method" of prevention is the long-range one, they continued, and that is "the deliberate exposure of young girls to the virus because 'one attack of this benign disease in childhood is generally followed by immunity.'"

The New England Journal of Medicine, which published their report, pointed out the virus is not particularly catchable. Therefore, many more persons acquire immunity to other childhood diseases when they should, in childhood, whereas German measles "plagues the high schools and colleges and, unhappily, the young married set."

Subcommittee Chairman Owen Harris (D-Ark) ventured no predictions but indicated the group will stay in recess for a week or more before calling the next series of witnesses. These are expected to be officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The SEC is one of the federal agencies with which Goldfine, still in the hospital, has been in conflict. He said the conflicts at this point appear to be minor.

Rep. John Bell Williams (D-Miss), a senior Democrat on the special subcommittee, said he didn't think Adams should be summoned back unless a study of his testimony shows major conflict with Goldfine's. He said the conflicts at this point appear to be minor.

Saenger Sunday and Monday

"The Sad Sack" stars Jerry Lewis, Phyllis Kirk, David Wayne and Peter Lorre coming to the Saenger Sunday and Monday.

Tues., Wed., Thurs. at Saenger

"Zero Hour" stars Dana Andrews, Linda Darnell and Sterling Hayden at the Saenger Tuesday through Thursday. Second half of a terrific double bill is "Country Music Holiday," starring Ferlin Husky and Faron Young.

Tonight at the Saenger

Danny Kaye and Pier Angeli are shown in a scene from "Merry Andrew," a technicolor movie showing for the last time tonight at the Saenger. Other half of the double feature is "Oregon Passage" with John Ericson.

At Saenger Tues. Thru Thurs.

Ferlin Husky stars in "Country Music Holiday" with Zsa Zsa Baker, Faron Young and a host of others at the Saenger Tuesday through Thursday. Second half of the big double feature is "Zero Hour," with Dana Andrews and Linda Darnell.

At Saenger Saturday

John Ericson stars in "Oregon Passage" tonight at the Saenger.

WHALE FEATURES
Though a descendant of land animals, the whale was hairy and four-legged, the whale has a naked skin except for a few scattered hairs on the head. Its only trace of hind limbs are a few tiny bones hidden at the base of the powerful tail.

EXPLORERS
John Cabot and his son, Sebastian, who reached the coast of Labrador in 1497, were Venetian explorers in the service of England.

PHILCO-BENDIX

DUOMATIC Washer-Dryer Combination

In Your Home

For Only

$2.00 a week

Does Your Laundry In Only 2 Minutes Of Your Time!

The Duomatic washes, spin dries, then completely dries your clothes in one continuous operation. Clothes come out sparkling clean, so dry, so fluffy, so wrinkle free that many need no ironing.

Saves you money! You buy only one machine, not two. Saves up to 20 gallons of wash water a load — uses less hot water and less detergent.

Saves space! Only 36" wide!

Washes Cleaner than any other washer. Lifts clothes high and then plunges them into the wash water 50 times a minute where thousands of jets of sudsy water surges through every fiber.

Dries faster than any other combination. Removes more water in spin — then dries faster with famous Philco-Bendix system. Safer for all fabrics. Gentle tumble action and safe, low heat drying combine to give clothes longer life.

LOADED GAG? — It may be a Fourth of July gag, but Pete the Pelican at Marineland, Fla., isn't quite convinced that the firecracker held by his porpoise pal is just a harmless fake. He's about to take off for a safer spot upstairs.

News Briefs

GUANTANAMO, Cuba (AP) — New security measures were in effect today at the big U.S. naval base near here to prevent Cuban rebels from taking advantage of the Navy's preoccupation with the Middle East crisis.

Four servicemen kidnaped by Fidel Castro's rebels on June 27 were returned Thursday. The remaining 14 are expected back within the next few days.

Reinforced guards were posted at the entrances to the base at Guantanamo Bay. The families of all base personnel living in Guantanamo City moved to the base as a precaution against further kidnappings. Special passes were required for trips to town.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The name of Benjamin Odum, 29, was certified by the City Civil Service Commission for appointment as a guard at the Cincinnati workhouse. Odum didn't get the job. He already was at the workhouse serving out a $42 fine for traffic violations.

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — The day before school was out, 12-year-old Gary Curry fell out of a tree. Both arms were broken below the elbows. He still was wearing casts this week when, while riding his bicycle, he fell and broke his left arm again, this time near the shoulder.

THE STORY OF MARTHA WAYNE

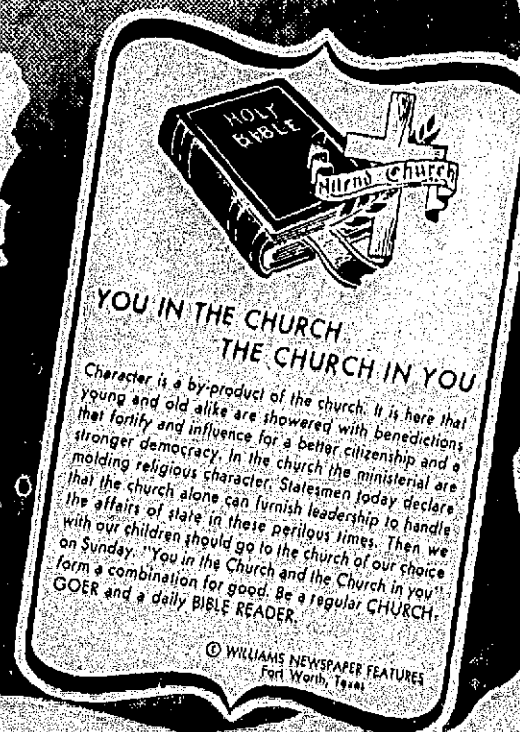

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It in Judea

His is he of whom it is written, the voice of one crying in the wilderness and saying, Repent ye: for the kingdom is at hand. Here John, a great preacher, warned the throng to prepare the way of the Lord, to make His paths straight. Great preachers today plead with us to be ready, for we know not the hour when the son of man cometh. Here, as in Judea where John spoke, men openly defy God, attack His church and its program of service and display contempt for His cause on the earth. Woe be it to those who take Him lightly, or to those who never take Him at all. Worldly gain at the expense of Heavenly loss, isn't much gain. You may be sure, Brother, at the opportune hour, His chosen moment, — He, whose fan is in His hand, will thoroughly purge His floor.

YOU IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial and a holding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. You in the Church and the Church in you! form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.
